Exercise 3:

```java
public Node reverse(Node P){
        Node prev = null;
        Node curr = P;

        while(curr != null) {
                // keep a reference for next node to access later
                Node next = curr.next;
                // point curr's next to null the first time
                curr.next = prev;
                // update the previous node to reference after and reverse the pointers.
                prev = curr;
                // use the reference to go to the next node curr = next;
        }
        // return the new first node of the reversed linked list
        return prev;
